

Here they quietly waited orders to take their place in the ranks of the grand funeral cortege. The Masonic fraternity was the only organization which was privileged to view the remains, the necessities of the occasion preventing others from being so gratified. Mr. Buchanan was a distinguished member of the Masonic fraternity, and the different lodges of the county sent delegations to attend the funeral. The turn out of the Masonic Order was by far the largest ever seen in this city at any funeral, and the plain and appropriate black dress worn by them was peculiarly becoming to the occasion.
